Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
SECOND LIFE:
FROM KIWI SOLDIER TO CIVILIAN

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of

Master of Arts in Psychology

at Massey University, Albany,
New Zealand

Thomas R. Smart

2016
Abstract

Experiences of sixteen former New Zealand (NZ) Army soldiers and officers were analysed to investigate the transition from NZ Army service to civilian life. All participants completed demographic questionnaires and participated in semi-structured interviews. Thematic analysis was used to identify and interpret patterns in relation to the research question. Analysis indicated that transition from the NZ Army is an experience comprising a search for personal meaning, vocational and identity adaptations, and social support in various forms. Having joined the NZ Army to fulfil personal incentives, soldiers realise career aspirations through the application of their skills during overseas missions and other activities. The transition process, which begins with disidentification and a manifest desire to leave, includes a search for rewarding employment beyond the NZ Army. Former soldiers use education, as well as personal strengths gained during service, to achieve vocational goals. Social aspects of the transition experience include poor leadership and disappointing farewells, fuelling discontent toward the NZ Army. In contrast, camaraderie between soldiers is a memorable and valued element of the NZ Army career. Having left the NZ Army, individuals experience a loss of this bond, negotiating personal identities while drawing on social support to successfully manage transitional challenges.
I would like to thank those who made valuable contributions to this research. Thanks go to my supervisors, Associate Professor Paul Merrick and Dr Veronica Hopner, for their professional guidance throughout this project. I would like to express my gratitude to the Massey Human Ethics Committee for granting ethical approval. I would also like to thank Mr Nephi Skipwith for his cultural insights, Mr David Moger for his assistance during participant recruitment, and the sixteen participants who shared their personal experiences of transition with me. Finally, I would like to thank my mother, Lorraine, for her unwavering support during my military career, my transition to civilian life, and during this project.
Table of Contents

Abstract ii

Acknowledgments iii

Table of Contents iv

Introduction 1

Chapter One: Research Background 3

Chapter Two: Methodology 13
  Participants 13
  Cultural Considerations 16
  Qualitative Approach 17
  Data Collection 17
  Thematic Analysis 19
  Reflexivity 22

Chapter Three: Findings 25
  Section One: Self and Role 25
    Theme One: Reasons to Join 25
    Theme Two: Career Highlights 29
    Theme Three: Disidentification 33
      Subtheme One: Non-Operational Lowpoint 33
      Subtheme Two: Bureaucratic Frustrations 36
      Subtheme Three: Leaving for Career 38
    Theme Four: Career, Education, and Experience 41
      Subtheme One: Career Liminality 42
      Subtheme Two: Education for Career 46
      Subtheme Three: Valued Work Experience 50
      Subtheme Four: Second Career Success 52
      Subtheme Five: Rewarding Service 56
Section Two: Self and Others 58
  Theme Five: Discouraging Leadership 58
  Theme Six: Unceremonious Farewell 62
  Theme Seven: Social Support 65
  Theme Eight: Camaraderie 70
    Subtheme One: Treasured Bonds 70
    Subtheme Two: Lost Belonging 73
  Theme Nine: Cross Cultural Journey 75
Section Three: Self and Self 81
  Theme Ten: Identity Loss and Continuity 81
  Theme Eleven: Alternate Identities 85
  Theme Twelve: Conditioned Behaviours 90

Chapter Four: Interventions 94

Chapter Five: Conclusions 98
  Research Limitations 98
  Future Directions 99
  Conclusion 101

References 103

Appendices 117