Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
PEER REVIEW:

ORGANISATIONAL LEARNING FOR NURSES

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts in Nursing at Massey University

Brigid Halmai Te Kahui McRae
1998
PEER REVIEW:

ORGANISATIONAL LEARNING FOR NURSES

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts in Nursing at Massey University

Brigid Halmai Te Kahui McRae
1998
Abstract

Organisational learning as it relates to the development of a peer review system within a clinical area of nursing practice is the focus of this study. Sixteen Public Health Nurses, with the manager of their service, and three key managers from the employing Crown Health Enterprise in provincial New Zealand, took part with the researcher in this praxis-oriented participatory action research process. A framework of the learning organisation was created to direct the research inquiry and evaluate data in relation to the developing peer review system.

Through the use of critically reflexive discussions in an ongoing spiral of planning, implementing, observing, and assessing, this study illuminates the growth of the learning organisation and the building of a peer review system, within a cost-conscious healthcare service delivery environment. The account of the research process includes factors facilitative of, and critical to, the learning organisation. Use of many direct quotes from participants creates a context against which to visualise problems and constraints faced by the research group, and offers the reader a decision trail with which to resolve issues of credibility.

Use of the peer process, it is suggested, will generate vital information about organisational performance, which will enable nurses to assume legitimate control of clinical nursing workplaces. Conclusions derived from this study suggest that peer review and the learning organisation are important tools for both assuring the quality of clinical nursing performance and securing organisational goals.
Acknowledgements

My thanks to the Public Health Nurses of the research group, and in particular to their manager, Christine, whose farsightedness, and concerns for an accurate appraisal of nurses' work initiated the peer review process. Thanks also to the outstandingly well-informed Nurse Advisor, as well as to the Chief Executive Officer and the Human Resource manager of the Crown Health Enterprise which employs these nurses. It was an illuminating and rewarding experience to work with you all.

Thank you for supervision and sound advice to Val, Jo, Cheryl and, most particularly, thanks to Phil for your energy, enthusiasm and excellent ideas. Thank you to my son, Christian, for encouragement and humour, and for taking time from a much more exciting life to proof-read and offer very much appreciated IT assistance.

The creation of this thesis is an undertaking that has crowded our lives for so long, and I owe a huge debt of time to my daughters. Thank you Stella and Halmai, for your love, understanding and patience. Thank you for seeing how important it has been to me, and all the things you did to help. I promise that I will repay your very important contributions to my endeavours. Remind me about it, whenever...

To my precious friend and mentor, Dorothy, there has never been anyone who has done for me what you have done; for your love and support and helping hands in so many different ways, on so many different occasions, thank you.

To my dear friends, especially Angie, Frank and Tony, thank you. I could not have done it without you.

♥
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Abstract</td>
<td>ii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Acknowledgements</td>
<td>iii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contents</td>
<td>iv</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CHAPTER ONE

Background to the study
- The research focus
  - Performance appraisal and performance management
  - The organisational context
- Focus on health professional performance
  - The public health nurses' role
  - The peer review process
- Research goal
- Thesis presentation

CHAPTER TWO

Peer review and performance management for nurses
- Literature searches
- Peer review as professional review
  - Performance management in the health care industry
  - Performance appraisal for nurses
  - Performance standards
  - The importance of feedback
  - Quality assurance and peer review
- Empowerment of the nurse as employee
- Governance of the clinical practice setting
CHAPTER SIX

Problem solving and the review team
The second spiral
Planning and action
Observation
The review team
Evaluation

CHAPTER SEVEN

A workshop aids decision making
The third spiral
Planning and action
Observation
Evaluation

CHAPTER EIGHT

Interviews with CHE managers
Signs of the learning organisation
Interviews with CHE managers
Summary of all data evaluation
The peer review system
The learning organisation

CHAPTER NINE

Discussions, recommendations and limitations
Recapitulation of research findings
Evaluation
Conclusions of the research
Implications for nursing practice 136
Implications for nursing education 138
Implications for nursing research 139
Limitations of the study 142
Concluding statement 144

REFERENCES i-vii

APPENDIX

Appendix A: Peer review model i-v
Appendix B: Definition of peer review vi-vii
Appendix C: Information/consent viii-xi