Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
KiwiChat Camp: Experiences and Perceptions of Children with Complex Communication Needs and their Family/Whānau

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Speech-Language Therapy at Massey University, Albany, New Zealand.

Jessamy Lauren Bell

2018
Abstract

Children with complex communication needs (CCN) who use augmentative and alternative communication (AAC) require a significant amount of intervention to achieve communicative competence. This study explored the perceptions and experiences of 16 children with CCN and their families who attended KiwiChat Camp, an intensive 5-day camp focused on using AAC in everyday contexts. Very few studies have explored the perceptions and experiences of camp interventions. KiwiChat camp involved explicit training sessions for parents and small group intervention for children who use AAC. All of the family members (parents, siblings and children who use AAC) were immersed in aided language stimulation throughout the day. They interacted with other families of children who use AAC and older AAC mentors. Pre-and-post data were collected through camp surveys for parents and children who use AAC and semi-structured interviews with parents and siblings. The quantitative data were analysed using descriptive statistics, while the qualitative data were analysed using a general inductive approach. The results indicated that families enjoyed the camp experience and parents experienced increased motivation, inspiration and empowerment following camp. However some felt overwhelmed during camp. They also perceived an increase in a range of communication outcomes (increased AAC use, confidence and knowledge) and sociocultural outcomes (connections with others who use AAC, a sense of belonging and development of identity). Recommendations for future camps and research studies are outlined.
Acknowledgements

After praying about whether to start postgraduate study, God gave me this verse during my morning Bible reading time. “An intelligent heart acquires knowledge and the ear of the wise seeks knowledge” Proverbs 18:15 (ESV). It’s been a hard road but I want to thank the Lord for bringing me through and blessing my journey with amazing family, friends and support. “Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good. His love endures forever” Psalm 136:1 (NIV).

Firstly, I would like to thank my patient and kind husband, Michael, for your unfailing encouragement, support and many cups of tea. Many tears were shed during the writing of this thesis but you never wavered in your thoughtfulness towards me. Thank you especially for taking care of me through glandular fever and then helping me with the last ‘push’ to finish this thesis. A huge thank you to my Mom, Dad and sister, Chelsea, for your support and encouragement to continue with postgraduate study. Along with thanks for my wonderful in-laws who have been kind and encouraging.

I wish to thank all of the families who attended KiwiChat Camp and volunteered to be part of this valuable research. Sharing your personal stories and experiences will be hugely beneficial and informative for speech-language therapists working with families of children with complex communication needs in the future. It was humbling for me to have a glimpse into your lives and how KiwiChat Camp affected each of your families.
To my wonderful supervisor, Dr. Sally Clendon, I cannot express how much your support, encouragement and enthusiasm has meant to me during this journey. Thank you for your eye for detail, your excellent feedback and for sharing your knowledge and expertise. Thank you for not becoming stressed when I got glandular fever and had to take time off – you supported me through it and assured me that I could still finish this project in time. I have learnt so much from you and hope to continue working together on other projects and KiwiChat initiatives in the future. Thank you to Dr. Liz Doell, my secondary supervisor as well. Your support during the data analysis stage and final review was greatly appreciated.

A big thank you to TalkLink Trust for your support of this research project. The provision of time and encouragement has been very gratefully received.

A final acknowledgement for the financial support received from TalkLink Trust, the New Zealand Speech-Language Therapists’ Association and the Assistive Technology Alliance of New Zealand. Your support lessened the financial pressure while completing my studies and I am very grateful.
Table of Contents

Abstract ........................................................................................................................................ i
Acknowledgements .................................................................................................................. ii
Table of Contents .................................................................................................................... iv
List of Appendices ................................................................................................................... ix
List of Figures and Tables ....................................................................................................... x
Chapter One: Introduction .................................................................................................... 1
  Rationale for this Study ..................................................................................................... 5
  The Research Aims ......................................................................................................... 7
  The Structure of this Thesis ............................................................................................ 7
Chapter Two: Literature Review ........................................................................................... 8
  Language Development in AAC ..................................................................................... 8
    Communicative competence .................................................................................... 8
    Challenges ............................................................................................................... 9
      AAC factors .......................................................................................................... 10
      Environmental barriers ...................................................................................... 11
      Cultural considerations ....................................................................................... 13
      Identity ............................................................................................................... 15
  Aided Language Stimulation ........................................................................................ 16
    Definition ............................................................................................................... 17
    Summary of studies ............................................................................................... 17
  Family Centered Practice ............................................................................................. 19
    Family support needs ............................................................................................ 20
    Technical skills ...................................................................................................... 21
    Language learning .................................................................................................. 21
    General training recommendations .................................................................... 22
    Motivation and empowerment ........................................................................... 23
  Service provision constraints .................................................................................... 25
  Sibling training ........................................................................................................... 25
  Effects of Group Intervention ..................................................................................... 26
    Benefits of peer-to-peer learning ........................................................................ 27 iv
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Challenges of peer-to-peer learning</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Group mentoring</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AAC Camps</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Camp format</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Camper information</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Camp methods</td>
<td>33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Camp results</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appraisal</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AAC Camps and the New Zealand Context</td>
<td>38</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter Three: Method</td>
<td>40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Research Question</td>
<td>40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KiwiChat Camp 2016</td>
<td>40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Participant Recruitment</td>
<td>42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Positionality</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Methodological Approach</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Surveys</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interviews</td>
<td>46</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The voice of children who use AAC</td>
<td>47</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Triangulation</td>
<td>48</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Instrument Design and Procedures</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Overview of instrument development</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Data collection for parents</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Content</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Format</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Process</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Data collection for children who use AAC</td>
<td>54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Content</td>
<td>54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Format</td>
<td>54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Process</td>
<td>54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Data collection for siblings</td>
<td>55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Content</td>
<td>55</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Increased expectations ................................................................. 87
Sociocultural Outcomes .............................................................. 89
Enjoyment ..................................................................................... 89
Connections .................................................................................. 92
  Families ...................................................................................... 93
  Mentors ..................................................................................... 94
  Staff ......................................................................................... 95
Sense of belonging ......................................................................... 96
Developed identity ......................................................................... 97
Findings - Children who use AAC .................................................... 97
Findings - Sibling ........................................................................... 99
  Enjoyment ................................................................................. 100
  Camp in general ........................................................................ 101
  Activities ................................................................................... 101
  Connecting with others who use AAC ........................................... 101
  Connecting with mentors ............................................................. 102
Outcomes ...................................................................................... 103
  Increased AAC use ..................................................................... 104
  Increased confidence ................................................................. 104
  Motivated to learn more about AAC ........................................... 105
  Increased knowledge ................................................................. 106
Conclusion ..................................................................................... 108
Chapter Five: Discussion ............................................................... 109
  Participants ................................................................................ 109
  Enjoyment ................................................................................ 110
  Emotional Impact ...................................................................... 110
  Communication Outcomes ......................................................... 113
  Sociocultural Outcomes ............................................................ 116
  Sense of belonging .................................................................... 117
  Holistic family-centred practice ................................................ 117
  Mentors ................................................................................... 118
Identity .................................................................................................................. 119
Conclusion ................................................................................................................. 120
Chapter Six: Conclusion ................................................................................................. 121
Purpose, Design and Rationale ................................................................................. 121
Trustworthiness of Findings ...................................................................................... 124
Limitations................................................................................................................. 125
Lack of maintenance and generalisation data ...................................................... 125
Interconnectedness...................................................................................................... 126
Method and instruments ...................................................................................... 127
Self-selection bias ..................................................................................................... 127
Clinical Implications................................................................................................. 128
Implications for Future Research .............................................................................. 129
Cost-effectiveness ..................................................................................................... 129
Voice of individuals who use AAC ......................................................................... 130
Challenges of interviewing siblings ....................................................................... 130
Other stakeholders ................................................................................................ 131
Assessment............................................................................................................ 131
Concluding Thoughts................................................................................................. 132
References..................................................................................................................... 133
Appendix ....................................................................................................................... 147
List of Appendices

Appendix A: Summary of AAC Camps ................................................................. 148
Appendix B: KiwiChat Camp Timetable 2016 ....................................................... 154
Appendix C: Information Sheet for Parents ....................................................... 155
Appendix D: Information Sheet for Older Siblings ........................................... 159
Appendix E: Consent Form – Parents ................................................................. 161
Appendix F: Consent Form – Older Siblings ...................................................... 162
Appendix G: Verbal Assent Script ........................................................................ 163
Appendix H: Pre-camp Survey for Parents ......................................................... 164
Appendix I: Post-camp Survey for Parents ....................................................... 167
Appendix J: Interview Questions for Parents .................................................... 172
Appendix K: Post-camp survey for Children who use AAC ............................... 173
Appendix L: Interview Questions for Siblings ................................................... 178
Appendix M: Codebook: Siblings ..................................................................... 179
Appendix N: Codebook: Parents ....................................................................... 181
Appendix O: Ethics Approval ............................................................................ 181
Appendix P: TalkLink Confidentiality Form ....................................................... 188
List of Tables

Table 1: Data Collection Methods ................................................................. 45
Table 2: Example of Coding and Data Analysis Process .......................... 59
Table 3: Demographics of Children who use AAC ................................. 64
Table 4: Pre-camp Likert Responses from Parents ............................... 68
Table 5: Post-camp Likert Responses from Parents ............................... 69
Table 6: Post-camp Survey Results of Children who use AAC ............... 98

List of Figures

Figure 1: The Experiences and Perceptions of Siblings of Children with Complex Communication Needs about Attending KiwiChat Camp: Themes ........................................ 73
Figure 2: The Experiences and Perceptions of Parents of Children with Complex Communication Needs about Attending KiwiChat Camp: Themes .............................. 100