Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
MUSLIM SPACES AND PIETY POLITICS:

Muslim Mothers Embroidering Multiple Interpretations of Islam in the Contemporary Context of Transnational Urban Landscape of Auckland

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts in Social Anthropology at Massey University, Auckland New Zealand

Hanny Savitri Hartono

2011
Abstract

New Zealand has been home to many migrants including Muslims for the past many decades. Muslims from diverse ethnic backgrounds have travelled and chosen this country as their new place of residence. Based on participant-observation fieldwork in Mt Roskill, a suburb in Auckland that is known for its highest Muslim population in New Zealand, this study seeks to map how devout Muslim mothers from different ethnicities strive to live their lives as pious Muslims. This ethnographic research aims to examine two primary issues: Muslim women’s engagement with their role as pious Muslims who endeavour to improve themselves in terms of understanding and practicing Islamic tenets in the midst of multiple discourses and practices available to them; and their engagement with their role as mothers who try to bring up their children as good Muslims in a diverse and increasingly global Muslim community within a larger scale of non-Muslim urban landscape. In particular, this study addresses how these women imbue piety in their children and improve themselves to be better Muslims in different Muslim spaces; home, tafsīr and tajwīd classes, communal prayer, their children’s madrassa and public school. Themes of music, clothing, gender-segregated spaces, greetings and ṣalāt (prayer) among others, emerged throughout the text in which piety politics is the core. For these Muslim women their lives are marked by negotiations to social mores, religious belief and practice vis-à-vis the diverse Muslim community and the larger non-Muslim context.
I have been fortunate to have the opportunity to study a topic that is close to my heart. A number of people have been very supportive of me academically and personally. This research would not have been realised without the generosity of the Muslim women and mothers who live in Mt Roskill, and my Muslim friends and acquaintances. You have opened your homes to me and shared your stories. I thank each and every one of you from the bottom of my heart. Jazakallahu khayrn. Terima kasih banyak.

I would also like to offer my sincere gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Graeme MacRae, of the Social Anthropology at Massey University at Albany Campus, for his thorough guidance and insightful comments. I owe a great debt to my supervisor for his invaluable inputs, which made me become not only more confident in conducting anthropological research and writing ethnographic text but also more confident to explore different facets of anthropological concepts. My appreciation also goes to Helen for taking the time to help with the proofreading in such short notice, to staff members of the School and to the library staff at Massey University who have been very kind to me.

This study was financially supported by the Massey Graduate Research Fund. This funding enabled me to conduct fieldwork in Mt Roskill, which was an essential part of this research.

Last of all, I would like to thank my husband, Sony, for his unflagging support and encouragement. He has been very supportive and always ready to help in whatever tasks needed to be done, from picking up our youngest son from school to cooking dinner for all of us, from helping me with technical problems to giving me confidence to pursue my study. And to Didid, Sasya and Dio who have been my inspirations behind this research. Thank you for all your love and support.
Table of Contents

Abstract ......................................................... ii
Acknowledgements ............................................... iii
List of Maps and Tables ....................................... v
List of Figures ................................................... vi
Note of Transcription ........................................... vii

Chapter 1  Introduction ........................................ 1
Chapter 2  Methodology ........................................ 13
  Fieldwork at “home” ........................................ 13
  Mt Roskill and its Muslim community .................... 25
Chapter 3  Home and mother’s role for piety .......... 35
  Ṣalāt and moral selfhood .................................. 45
  The challenges ............................................. 55
Chapter 4  Public enactment of piety ..................... 61
  Tafsir class, and great and little traditions debate .... 61
  Tajwīd class and Qur’anic recitation .................. 74
Chapter 5  Communal prayer .................................. 87
Chapter 6  Schools for Muslim Children ................. 98
  Madrassa .................................................. 101
  Public School ............................................. 109
Chapter 7  Conclusion .......................................... 117
Appendix: Questions for participants .................... 122
References ...................................................... 124
Glossary of key terms used in the text .................. 139
List of Maps and Tables

Map 1: Mt Roskill 11

Table 1: Religious affiliations in Avondale/Roskill Area 12

Table 2: Time-slots for the five obligatory ṣalāt performances (summer time) 49

Table 3: Time-slots for the five obligatory ṣalāt performances (winter time) 50
List of Figures

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Figure</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Figure 1:</td>
<td>Mohammed’s Halal Meats at Richardson Road, with the researcher. A man in kurta passing by. Photograph by Sasya Wreksono.</td>
<td>24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 2:</td>
<td>A girl in ḥijāb walking down Stoddard Road with a shop that retails Muslim merchandise.</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 3:</td>
<td>A living room in Mt Roskill with calligraphy signifies a Muslim space.</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 4:</td>
<td>Wall clock in a living room in Mt Roskill with an adhan alarm and “Allah” and “Muhammad” inscriptions.</td>
<td>54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 5:</td>
<td>Muslim teenagers on the mosque veranda waiting for Zuhur communal prayer to start.</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 6:</td>
<td>Word-for-word English translation of the Arabic verse of sūrah Al-Fātihah.</td>
<td>73</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 7:</td>
<td>A living room in Mt Roskill with calligraphy on the wall and a Qur’an with tajwīd on the mantelpiece. The Qur’an is specially designed with letters of different colours to help recitation with proper tajwīd.</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 8:</td>
<td>Men walking to Masjid e Umar for Zuhur communal prayer. A number of cars are parked on the mosque grounds as the occupants wait inside for the prayer.</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 9:</td>
<td>Iqra’ books (Humam 2005) for children or new beginners to be used for learning Arabic letters. The letters in the first book (right) are introduced in their original form. In the second book (left) the letters are written in continuous form much like the form in the Qur’an. There are six books altogether.</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 10 and 11:</td>
<td>Moshim’s Plaza on Stoddard Road accommodating different Muslim shops including halāl supermarket, halāl meat shop, halāl food court, Muslim clothing store and a Christian aid and development organisation. Moshim’s Plaza was opened on 20th June 2009 under the management of Moshim’s Discount House Group of Companies owned by a Muslim entrepreneur. The group owned 24 stores throughout New Zealand and two stores in Australia (Indian Weekender June 21, 2009). It is a unique and a pleasant sight to see that Muslim and Christian organisations work side by side.</td>
<td>115</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notes: All photographs except for figure 1 were taken by the researcher.
In general, I used English Transliteration System outlined in the International Journal of Middle Eastern Studies (IJMES) for transliterating words in Arabic. Diacritical marks are included to indicate different sounds of Arabic letters.