Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
IN IT FOR THE MONEY

Narrative explorations of the great recession

JAMES FINDLATER
This project seeks to explore how formal elements of sequential art can be applied, through practice based research, to the visual communication of complex socio-political events; specifically the events leading up to the global financial crisis of 2008.

The project is foremost a personal exploration of the crisis made possible by the unique combination of tools discerned through research, and is not intended to be a comprehensive analysis of the origins of financial crisis in its entirety.

I believe that a narrative based approach that utilises the unique facilities of sequential art will be well suited to the visual exploration of the complex and convoluted set of events that led up to the crisis. It is hoped that the outcomes will provide a methodological framework for the visual communication of similarly complex socio-political events.
Produced as part of Massey University’s MDES programme, 2011/2012

With thanks to: Anthony Nevin, Gray Hodgkinson, Stella Robertson, Julieanna Preston, Patricia Thomas, Lisa Munnelly, fellow candidates, family and friends.

Copyright © James Findlater, 2012
CONTENTS PAGE

ABSTRACT

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Project Aims
1.2 Why the financial crisis?
1.3 Selected precedents

SEQUENTIAL ART: SELECTED CONVENTIONS AND TECHNIQUES

2.2 Key conventions of sequential art
2.2.1 Composing in the fourth dimension
2.2.2 Basic grammar of sequential art
2.2.3 The infinite canvas
2.2.4 The relationship between reader and artist
2.2.5 Sequential art as information display

2.3 Three case studies of artists key to the research process
2.3.1 Case Study #1: Hergé’s Destination Moon and Explorers on the Moon
2.3.2 Case Study #2: Chris Ware’s Acme Novelty Library series
2.3.3 Case Study #3: Art Spiegelman’s In the Shadow of No Towers

METHODOLOGY/METHOD: THINKING AND ACTION

3.1 Research methods
3.2 Key design methodologies
3.3 The project, chronologically
3.3.1 Initial experiments 45
3.3.2 New considerations 56
3.3.3 Final iterations 62

CONCLUSION

4.2 Further avenues of research 74

BIBLIOGRAPHY

List of supplementary images 84