Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
Metafiction in New Zealand
from the 1960s to the present day

A thesis submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of

Doctor of Philosophy in English

Massey University, Albany, New Zealand

Matthew Harris

2011
Metafiction in New Zealand from the 1960s to the present day (2011) by Matthew Harris (for Massey University) is licensed under a Creative Commons - Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 3.0 Unported License. Permissions beyond the scope of this license may be available at www.matthewjamesharris.com.
ABSTRACT

While studies of metafiction have proliferated across America and Europe, the present thesis is the first full-length assessment of its place in the literature of New Zealand. Taking as its point of reference a selection of works from authors Janet Frame, C.K. Stead, Russell Haley, Michael Jackson and Charlotte Randall, this thesis employs a synthesis of contextual and performative frameworks to examine how the internationally-prevalent mode of metafiction has influenced New Zealand fiction since the middle of the 20th century. While metafictional texts have conventionally been thought to undermine notions of realism and sever illusions of representation, this thesis explores ways in which the metafictional mode in New Zealand since the 1960s might be seen to expand and augment realism by depicting individual modes of thought and naturalising unique forms of self-reflection, during what some commentators have seen as a period of cultural ‘inwardness’ following various socio-political shifts in the latter part of 20th century New Zealand.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

LIST OF FIGURES vi

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS vii

INTRODUCTION 1

CHAPTER I: Methodology 24

1 Narratology and performativity 24

1.2 Performativity in narrative 30

1.3 Metafictional performativity in a narratological framework 39

1.4 Description of Terms 47

1.5 Reflexive narrative in the New Zealand context 53

CHAPTER II: The elusive humour of Janet Frame’s metafictions 68

2.1 Derivations: the quizzical and the implausible 68

2.2 Pretenses of language and place in The Carpathians 86

2.3 Out of the frame: metanarration on metanarration 94

CHAPTER III: C.K. Stead: the provenance of narrative 98

3.1 The author, the reader, the text 98

3.2 Foregrounding the authorial mind in criticism 107

3.3 Realist metafiction and the autobiographical 109

CHAPTER IV: Epistemic dubiety in the work of Russell Haley 129

4.1 Freed? the shift from provincialism to internationalism 129

4.2 Exiled to the mind: Russell Haley’s epistemic dubiety 139

4.4 Extradiegetic dubiety in The Settlement 146

4.5 The thin envelope of skin in Beside Myself 151

CHAPTER V: Michael Jackson: intersubjectivity and the individual 159
5.1 Illeism in Barawa

5.2 Rainshadow: Intersubjectivity and the individual

5.3 Individualism in Pieces of Music

CHAPTER VI: Albert Wendt’s citationality and resistance

6.1 Māori and Pacific metafiction in the 20th century

6.2 Biography is fiction: Ola’s manifold realities

6.3 A tale about other tales: citationality and authorial performance in Black Rainbow

CHAPTER VII: Charlotte Randall: anthropomorphized narrative

7.1 The prison-house of plot in The Curative

7.2 Keep it Simple, Stupid?

7.3 Fractalian iterations

CHAPTER VIII: Findings and discussion

REFERENCES

APPENDIX A: Statement of contribution to doctoral thesis containing publications

APPENDIX B: Low risk notification for interviews

APPENDIX C: Interview with C.K. Stead

APPENDIX D: Interview with Russell Haley

APPENDIX E: Interview with Michael Jackson

APPENDIX F: Interview with Albert Wendt

APPENDIX G: Interview with Charlotte Randall

BIOGRAPHY
LIST OF FIGURES

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Number</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3.</td>
<td>Summary of Genette’s categories with emendations</td>
<td>41</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.</td>
<td>Author/reader/text in The Death of the Body</td>
<td>121</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am especially indebted to Dr Mary Paul and Dr Jack Ross for the help they have provided over the past four years of researching and writing - their comments, question-marks, stylistic advice, editing notes, and suggestions on content have been indispensable; to others within the late School of Social and Cultural Studies who also contributed very useful comments and counter-arguments, especially Dr Jenny Lawn and Prof Peter Lineham; to Dr Sarah Shieff for her comments on my introduction; to my examiners, for their astute critiques; to Massey University for the support of a doctoral scholarship; thanks also to Russell Haley, Michael Jackson, Charlotte Randall, Karl Stead and Albert Wendt who have been extremely helpful in making themselves available to answer my questions; to Landfall and The Literary Encyclopedia for publishing parts of this thesis; to my fellow inmates in the PhD room at Albany; to Sheryl Harris, Ian and Linda Cook for financial support; to the friends that I've seen less of than I would have liked, especially Cam and Pete; and much love to Emma and the kids.