Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
Gendering Trauma and Healing in a Post-Conflict Environment: Las Dignas, Mental Health, and the Empowerment of Salvadoran Women

A dissertation presented in fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of

Doctor of Philosophy at Massey University, Turitea Campus, Palmerston North,

New Zealand

Helen Margaret Leslie
1999 Abstract

There is no doubt that the experience of war, be it war between nation states or civil war, varies considerably for both male and females. The twelve year civil war in El Salvador was no exception. Salvadoran women who worked in various sectors as combatants, urban collaborators, home-makers, nurses, cooks or radio operators for the guerrilla forces, experienced the war and now experience so-called peace, in ways that relate directly to the construction of the female sex in Salvadoran society. As a result of these gendered experiences many Salvadoran women are suffering trauma despite the cessation of the war in 1992. This trauma acts to disempower these women and to prevent them from actively participating in the important processes of post-conflict reconstruction currently taking place in Salvadoran society.

This thesis aims to analyse the approach taken by one Salvadoran organisation for feminist political action, Las Dignas, in healing the trauma of Salvadoran women. Reviewing relevant literature on gender and development theory and gender and conflict theory, and drawing on feminist methods in the fieldwork context, it will show how the healing process employed by Las Dignas is empowering Salvadoran women at both personal and socio-political levels.

The conclusions derived from this research process are as follows. Firstly, by incorporating mental health into their gender and development programme, Las Dignas has recognised the importance of a gendered approach to healing in the post-conflict context. This form of approach has the potential to empower women to reconstruct their gendered identities so that they are able to actively participate in efforts to eradicate the machismo, inequality and poverty that continues to plague Salvadoran society. Secondly, because it is evident that a gendered approach to healing has been successful in empowering women in post-conflict El Salvador, there is a need to integrate the concept of empowerment into mental health interventions for women in the numerous post-conflict environments that also exist in today’s world.
Preface

Coming from a country that has no relations with El Salvador beyond the trade of dairy products, I am often asked why I chose El Salvador as a topic for my thesis. To answer this I am compelled to relate the course of events that led me to become interested in a country so far away and so removed politically from the country of my origin, New Zealand.

The cycle of events began when, after returning from a period of overseas travel from 1989-1993, I experienced a form of political awakening and decided to undertake postgraduate study in development studies. In some ways this reflected a desire to understand the issues of development and underdevelopment I had observed during my travels, but in others, it was a search to do something about the appalling state in which the majority of the peoples of our world live.

In finding that studying development fulfilled only a percentage of this desire, I sought also to become involved with development practice. In this vein, I began working as a volunteer for a progressive New Zealand justice and development organisation by the name of CORSO. Through CORSO I had the privilege of meeting a number of development practitioners from around the world, including Ofelia Lopez.

Ofelia came to New Zealand from El Salvador in 1995 as a representative of Las Dignas Mujeres por La Dignidad y La Vida (Women for Dignity and Life). As CORSO had been involved with funding some of Las Dignas’ programmes from the early 1990s, we, along with several other New Zealand international development Non Governmental Organisations (NGOs), hosted Ofelia’s visit. This involved organising public meetings and media coverage to raise awareness of the development issues facing El Salvador following the signing of the peace accords which ended the civil war in 1992.

When Ofelia came to stay with me in Palmerston North I was simultaneously shocked and inspired by our meeting. Here was a woman with a recent history of incredible suffering. Having been involved with the opposition movement both before and during the civil war, Ofelia and her family were subjected to continuous repression at the hands of the Salvadoran military. Ofelia’s husband, father and four brothers were assassinated by the military and Ofelia herself was incarcerated for 26 months. While in prison, Ofelia gave birth to one of her daughters and endured constant physical and psychological torture.

Ofelia’s commitment to her people and in particular, the rights of women in El Salvador, did not end, however, with her eventual release from prison and her four year exile in Australia. After acting as a representative of the Committee of Mothers and Relatives of Political Prisoners, Disappeared and Assassinated of El Salvador (COMADRES) in Australia, she returned to El Salvador following the signing of peace accords to begin assisting Salvadoran women, ‘to change things for themselves and then for others’ (Ofelia Lopez, cited in The Age, 19 August:1992). This commitment saw her become involved with the newly formed Las Dignas and Ofelia spent the next few years training traditional midwives and promoting women’s participation in the local democratic process.

Of all the activities of Las Dignas Ofelia spoke of during her time with us in New Zealand, it was perhaps their mental health programme to assist women with healing the trauma of the war, that I found most inspiring. It seemed to me that here was a programme that not only recognised women’s gendered experiences of war, but also, assisted women in reconstructing their gendered identities into ones that would see them as strong and capable citizens of Salvadoran society. As it has been well established that women’s active participation is essential to the sustainable development of a nation,
I felt that the potential of such a programme was enormous.

While I had viewed the study of development as a departure from my background in nursing, it was, perhaps, my nursing background that lead me to focus on Las Dignas’ mental health programme. I had worked previously as a mental health nurse and I felt that my years of sitting next to patients’ beds listening to the stories of their lives, would place me in good stead for undertaking a research project that required empathy, adaptation and the ability to relate to women from a different culture to my own.
Thus, after keeping in contact with Ofelia and gaining permission from Las Dignas to conduct research in El Salvador, I enrolled in a PhD programme in development studies. My journey of discovery had begun.
Acknowledgments

The completion of this thesis has been made possible through the support and assistance of many people.

In particular I would like to thank my supervisors, John Overton, Regina Scheyvens and Robert Gregory for their constant enthusiasm and careful guidance;

the Ryoichi Sasakawa Scholarships Committee for providing me with the generous funding needed to conduct my research;

Ananda Millard, Ofelia Lopez, Christina Ibáñez and all the staff of Las Dignas for welcoming and caring for me during my time in El Salvador;

Alex Quintanilla, Natalia Ramirez and Alicia Garcia for their patience, friendship and assistance with Spanish language, transcription and translation;

the members of the Wednesday and Berlin groups for teaching me about their lives;

my colleagues in CORSO for facilitating my interest in the work of Las Dignas;

Marie Leslie, Joan Morrell and Anne Kelly for their help with proofreading; and my friends, near and far, whose interest and support for my research has been unfailing.

I would also like to thank my parents, Marie and Arnold, and my brothers, Paul, Darron, Andrew and Michael whose belief in me has enabled me to become the most qualified Leslie!

Lastly I would like to thank my partner, John Morrell for being prepared to fend off cockroaches for me in El Salvador and for your constant love and support throughout the thesis writing process.
Table of Contents

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Title Page</td>
<td>i</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abstract</td>
<td>ii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preface</td>
<td>iii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Acknowledgments</td>
<td>vi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>List of Figures and Tables</td>
<td>xiii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>List of Photographs</td>
<td>xiii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>List of Acronyms</td>
<td>xv</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Table of Contents</td>
<td>vii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter One - Introduction</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Background to the Thesis</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>El Salvador: The Country and its Pre-War History</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contribution to Knowledge</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gender and Conflict</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gender and Development</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Outline of Thesis</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter Two - Theoretical Approaches to Women and Development in the Third World</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Introduction</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The ‘Women’s Question’ enters the Development Arena</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr> </tbody>
</table>
Before Women in Development
Women as Economic Actors: Ester Boserup and WID

Alternative Thought on the ‘Women Question’ in Development
From WAD to GAD
Postmodern Challenges to Gender Issues in Development

Empowerment and Gender Issues in Development
Defining Empowerment
Disempowerment
Summary

Chapter Three - Women Organising for Change in Latin America: Empowerment/Disempowerment in Practice

Introduction
Women’s Organisations and New Social Movement Discourse
Forms of Women’s Organisations in Latin America
Defining Women’s Organisations
Mother’s Movements: Working Class Urban and Human Rights Movements
Indigenous Women’s Organisations/Peasant Movements
The Feminist Stream
Revolutionary women

Women’s Mobilisation’s for Change in Latin America as Empowerment/Disempowerment?
Can Women’s Empowerment Outlive Revolution/Democracy?
Gender-related Violence as Disempowerment
Rape in Latin America
Torture in Latin America
Los Desaparecidos/ The Disappeared
Violence against Women Refugees/Civilians
Summary
Chapter Four - Psychological Impacts of Gender Related Violence: Trauma, and Gender-Specific Approaches to Healing in Post-Conflict Latin America

Introduction 87

Psychological effects of Gender-Related Violence 88

- Generalising Psychological Effects 88
- Post Traumatic Stress Disorder 92

Gender and Development in Post-Conflict Environments 98

- Healing the Wounds of Gender-Related Violence 99
- An Approach to Healing 103

Summary 108

Chapter Five - Method in the Madness 110

Introduction 110

Feminist Research 111

- What is Feminist Research? 111
- Historical Roots of Feminist Research and Ways of Knowing 114
- Feminist Cross Cultural Research 118
- Research Techniques: ‘Tools of the Trade’ 122
- Empowering Research Methods 127

Research in Practice 134

- Entering the Field 134
- Doing Feminist Research in El Salvador 140
- Empowering Research or Damage Control? 149

Summary 152

Epilogue 153

Thesis Participants 154
Chapter Six - El Salvador’s Civil War and Contemporary Context

Introduction
The Pre-War Setting
Popular Movement and the Impact of Liberation Theology
A Society at War: 1980-1992
The Final Offensive
Living Rural Insurgency
The United States Occupies Centre Stage
The FMLN Re-Groups
The Peace Process
Contemporary Salvadoran Society: Will Peace Endure?
Violence and Mental Health
Elections and the Police Force: The New Players
Economic Inequality and the Battle for Poverty Alleviation
The Feminisation of Poverty in Contemporary El Salvador
Summary

Chapter Seven - Women’s Experiences of Conflict in El Salvador

Introduction
Women’s participation in the Civil War
Forms of Participation
Participation as Empowerment/Disempowerment
Flight and Movement
Motherhood
Sexuality Peacetime
The Impact of the Civil War on Women’s Mental Health
Generalising Illness Experiences
Mental Health of Participants

Summary

Chapter Eight - The Work of Las Dignas

Introduction

Women Organising for Change in El Salvador

Historical Review

Organising in 1997

Women for Dignity and Life (Las Dignas)

Herstory of Las Dignas

Las Dignas - Structure and Programmes

The Mental Health Programme

The Pilot Programme

The Work of the Mental Health Team

Self-help in San Salvador and Berlin

Summary

Chapter Nine - Mental Health As Empowerment?: Analysing the Empowerment Potential of Las Dignas' Self-help Groups

Introduction

Empowerment Revisited

Important considerations

Empowerment and the Theoretical Model

Empowerment in the Wednesday Group

Conscientisation/Reconstructing Gender Roles

Personal Empowerment

Social/Political Empowerment

Disempowering Outcomes

Empowerment in the Berlín Group
List of Figures and Tables

Figure 1: Context Map of El Salvador .................................................. 5

Figure 2: The Women's Movement During the Return to Competitive Electoral Politics
(Peruvian, Chilean and Argentinian Examples). ...................................... 76

Figure 3: An Approach to Healing for Women in Post-Conflict Latin America 106

Figure 4: Organisational Chart of Las Dignas ........................................ 253

Table 1: Jane Stein's Framework of Individual Level Empowerment .......... 36

Table 2: Five Member Organisations of the FMLN ................................ 161

Table 3: The Chapultepec Accord ....................................................... 179
List of Photographs

Photo 1:  El Salvador has a relatively ethnically homogenous population 6
Photo 2:  San Vincente volcano: one of El Salvador’s numerous volcanic peaks 6
Photo 3:  Poor housing in rural El Salvador 138
Photo 4:  Typical poor housing in the capital, San Salvador 138
Photo 5:  Defending wealth and privilege: security guard in upper-class suburb San Salvador 139
Photo 6:  Signs of War: remnants of FMLN bombing campaign in San Salvador 139
Photo 7:  They have not died, they are with us, with you, and with all of humanity: inscription on memorial plaque at El Mozote 169
Photo 8:  Monument to the dead at El Mozote 169
Photo 9:  “Please leave your gun in the entrance”: sign outside supermarket, San Salvador 182
Photo 10: Mara graffiti on city market 182
Photo 11: Activities on the International Day Against Violence Against Women 240
Photo 12: “We have the right to decide in the country, in the community, in the home, in the bed and about our bodies: Las Dignas banner at the International Day Against Violence Against Women 240
Photo 13: “For your health and tranquillity buy from the market”: Las Dignas local development programme, Suchitoto 251
Photo 14: Training in non-traditional occupations: Las Dignas carpentry workshops, San Salvador 251
Photo 15: Central Office of Las Dignas, San Salvador 251
List of Acronyms

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Acronym</th>
<th>Full Form</th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>ACISAM</td>
<td>Association of Training and Research for Mental Health</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AMES</td>
<td>Association of Salvadoran Women</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AMIS</td>
<td>Association of Indigenous Salvadoran Women</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AMPRONAC</td>
<td>Association of Nicaraguan Women Confronting the Nations Problems</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ANESAL</td>
<td>Salvadoran National Security Agency</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ANIS</td>
<td>National Association of Indigenous Salvadorans</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ARENA</td>
<td>Nationalist Republican Alliance</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CEF</td>
<td>Centre for Feminist Studies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CEMUJER</td>
<td>Norma Virginia Guirola Herrera Centre for Women’s Studies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CIA</td>
<td>Central Intelligence Agency</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM</td>
<td>Coordination of Women’s Organisations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COMADRES</td>
<td>Committee of Mothers and Relatives of Political Prisoners, Disappeared and Assassinated of El Salvador</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CONAMUS</td>
<td>National Coordinating Committee of Salvadoran Women</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CONAVIGUA</td>
<td>National Coordinator of Widows of Guatemala</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COPAZ</td>
<td>National Peace Commission</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DAWN</td>
<td>Development Alternatives With Women for a New Era</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ERP</td>
<td>Revolutionary Army of the People</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FAES</td>
<td>Salvadoran Armed Forces</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FDR</td>
<td>Democratic Revolutionary Front</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FMLN</td>
<td>Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FPL</td>
<td>Popular Forces of Liberation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FUNDE</td>
<td>National Development Foundation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FUNDO</td>
<td>Fund for the Protection of War Wounded and Disabled</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IMU</td>
<td>Institute for Research, Training and Development of Women</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MAM</td>
<td>Melinda Anaya Montes Women’s Movement</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MSM</td>
<td>Salvadoran Women’s Movement</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ONUSAL</td>
<td>United Nations Observer Mission in El Salvador</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ORDEN</td>
<td>National Democratic Organisation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ORMUSA</td>
<td>Organisation of Salvadoran Women</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PPL</td>
<td>Local Popular Power</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>RN</td>
<td>National Resistance</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNESCO</td>
<td>United Nations Education Science and Culture Organisation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNHCR</td>
<td>United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNICEF</td>
<td>United Nations Children’s Fund</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>URP</td>
<td>United to Reconstruct Plan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>USAID</td>
<td>United States Aid for International Development</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>