Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.
Liquid Contemporeality
Cybernetic waves emerging from the currents of time

Exegesis
submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for a Masters of Fine Arts (MFA) degree
at Massey University,
Wellington, New Zealand

Mica Hubertus Mick
October, 2014
Acknowledgements:

Many thanks to

David Cross for developing and contributing great ideas to this program and being an inspiring teacher,

Heather Galbraith for her commitment to COCA and support, my supervisors, Roy Parkhurst and Max Schleser for guidance and support,

Marcus Moore for teaching, encouragement and support

Julieanna Preston and Maddie Leach for their commitment to the program, teaching and provocations.
Abstract:

This exegesis outlines the metanarrative that builds the conceptual background relevant for my artistic practice. It is centered towards some of the relevant issues and the impact that the digital mediascape has on current human culture. Furthermore I discuss the multiple artistic histories and influences framing my research practice in the field of new media art and moving image work. In addition I analyze the processes and experiments leading towards the decisions about my final work. The audiovisual installation Forces installed in ‘The Pit’ is a poetic interpretation of the multiple dynamic energies impacting on the flow and upheavals of the current technological transformation: cybernetic waves emerging from the currents of time.
Table of Contents

Title Page ................................................................. 1
Acknowledgements ....................................................... 2
Abstract ........................................................................ 3
Table of Contents .......................................................... 4

1. Introduction .............................................................. 5
2. The current ‘technological momentum’ is a contested space between seduction and dystopia .......................................................... 9
3. The metapoetics of Water and me .................................... 18
4. Concept art meets new media art ................................... 20
5. Towards a practice of video installation .......................... 25
6. Artistic influences and context ...................................... 29
   • Kinetic abstraction ..................................................... 31
   • Visual abstraction ...................................................... 32
   • Acousmatic soundscapes ........................................... 34
7. Forces an audiovisual installation with subtext ............... 36
8. Conclusion .................................................................... 38
List of Illustrations ........................................................ 40
Exhibitions and Filmography ........................................... 41
Bibliography ................................................................. 42
Appendix ........................................................................ 48