

Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.

Exploring transactions: Art museums, access and the Web

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of

Master of Arts

in

Museum Studies

at Massey University, Palmerston North,
New Zealand.

Paper number 67.899 (100 pts)

C. Wallis Barnicoat

2000

Abstract

This thesis examines the way in which art museums develop and use Web sites to promote greater access to their resources.

It does this by considering the type of transactions that occur between the museum and its visitors in the physical and virtual location. The thesis is based on an investigation of three San Francisco Bay Area art museums, (Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, University of California Berkeley Art Museum and Pacific Film Archive and San Francisco Museum of Modern Art).

The thesis illustrates the attempts of art museums to adopt innovative approaches to the provision of access through the virtual environment of the World Wide Web.

The thesis concludes that art museums are unsure of their place in the technological foundations of the Internet. Furthermore, museums are unclear in their vision of the purpose of virtual environments. Unlike the world of education, which is familiar with the theory and practice of distance learning, and the world of private enterprise, which focuses, increasingly, on e-commerce, museums lack a singular, clear vision of how best to adapt the user-centric foundation of the Web to provide greater access to their resources. Not until art museums successfully evaluate the needs of their virtual visitors and create a transactional base that caters to those needs, will museums find their place in the Information Age.

Acknowledgements

I wish to acknowledge and thank the staff of the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, University of California Berkeley Art Museum and Pacific Film Archive and San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, who took a supportive interest in my research and participated in my extensive interviews.

I would like to thank Peter Samis and Professor Joe Camacho for their thought provoking discussions

I also thank my supervisors Susan Abasa and Henry Barnard for their assistance.

Finally, I thank Louise Barnicoat, Rochelle Simmons and Linda Tyler for their constant encouragement, and my foster son, Emilliano, for waiting so patiently to 'hang-out' with me.

Table of Contents

Title page	i
Abstract	ii
Acknowledgements	iii
Table of Contents	iv
List of Abbreviations	v
List of Illustrations	vi
Introduction	1
Chapter One: Access and new technologies	9
Chapter Two: Transactions	26
Chapter Three: World Wide Web site case studies	42
Chapter Four: Analysis	63
Chapter Five: Conclusion	86
Appendix A	103
Appendix B	108
Appendix C	120
Appendix D	121
Appendix E	123
Bibliography	125

List of Abbreviations

BAM: University of California Berkeley Art Museum and Pacific Film Archive

FAMSF: Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco

SFMOMA: San Francisco Museum of Modern Art

Web: World Wide Web

WWW: World Wide Web

List of Illustrations

Figures

3.1 Top section of FAMSF home page	45
3.2 Top section of Imagebase opening page	50
3.3 Pages 1, 2, and 3 of the BAM Web site	51
3.4 Carrie Mae Weems Conversations page	56
3.5 Bill Viola Web feature Exhibition Overview page	59
3.6 Architecture and Design page features access to art Web sites	61

Tables

2.1 Reputation and access	32
2.2 Inanimate/animate	32
2.3 Reciprocation occurs in transactions	33
2.4 Transaction gives/gains	34
2.5 Producer/consumer	34
2.6 Transfer and exchange of services and goods for funds	34
4.1 A list of transactions supplied on the three museums' Web sites	67
4.2 Situations that influence transactions in the physical museum and its Web site	73
4.3 Transactions at all sites	74
4.4 Similar transactions are provided in different ways	75
4.5 The type, purpose, outcome and control over transactions on the Web site	84
5.1 What the Web enables the art museum to do	99
5.2 Greater access to museum visitors is provided through the Web by	101