In Ueshiba’s opinion, Aikido’s secret is how you move your mind, not your feet, and this centers on exploring how we each move through the world and interact with others - a ‘common center’ - as a way of being in the world.