ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

There are so many people that have helped make this thesis possible. I hope that they may take these words as a sign of my sincerest gratitude for all of their help.

Firstly, I wish to thank Dr Kerry Taylor, who agreed to be my supervisor again this year. Thank you for your ongoing guidance and support. Thank you for pushing me to improve and encouraging my passion in this aspect of New Zealand's history.

This research could not have come into being if it wasn't for the financial assistance I received. Thank you to Massey University for your scholarship. I wish to thank the Peace and Disarmament Education Trust for seeing the potential in this topic. I also wish to thank the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade for their grant.

To my family and friends - you deserve a huge thank you. I really appreciated those who sent emails and texts asking how it was going – thanks everyone. Hannah, thank you for agreeing to read through the draft and for your constant encouragement.

I wish to thank all the staff at the various libraries and archives I have been to for your help. Particularly Jocelyn Chalmers at the Alexander Turnbull Library; Jane Leighton from the document supply section of Massey University Library; Norma O'Connor, the South Taranaki District Council archivist and both the teams at Wellington City Council Archives and at the Ian Matheson Palmerston North City Archives.

The most enjoyable component of this research has been the opportunity to travel the country and meet so many people. I simply couldn't have done this without people allowing me to go to their homes and talk and / or correspond with them. It was a real honour and privilege. Thank you to Aline Pengelly, Barney Richards, Freda Larsen, George Armstrong, John Campbell-MacDonald, Kate Dewes, Larry Ross, Maire Leadbetter, Nicky Hager, Roger Peters and Rob Ferguson. A special thank you to John Campbell-MacDonald, Kate Dewes, Roger Peters and Larry Ross for allowing me to use your personal collections.

I would also like to thank Edwina and the team at Peace Movement Aotearoa for consenting to give me access to your records. Thank you also to Ruth Greenaway of the Straw Umbrella Trust who allowed me listen to her recorded peace people interviews.
