

Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.

‘Should He Serve?’

The Military Service Boards’ Operations in the Wellington Provincial District, 1916-1918

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirement for the degree of Master of Arts in History at Massey University

David Littlewood
2010

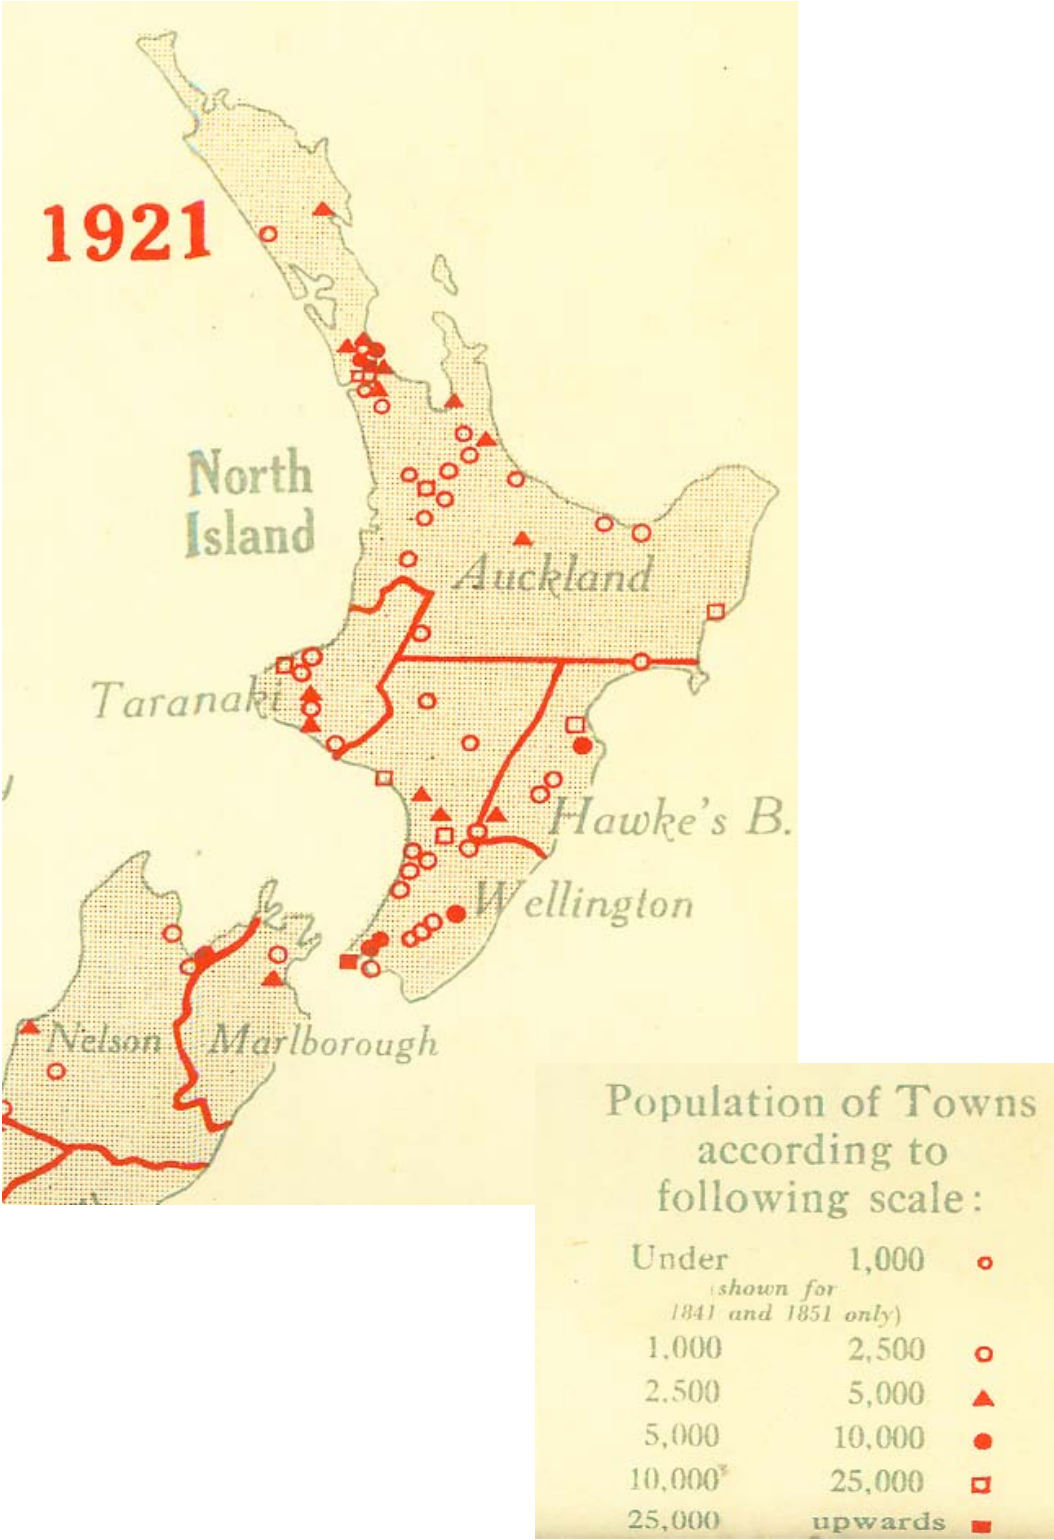

Contents

	Page No.
Abbreviations	iii
Map Boundaries of North Island Provincial Districts in 1921	iv
Charts	v
Acknowledgements	vi
Introduction	1
Chapter One Setting the Parameters: Government Decisions prior to the Boards' Operations	10
Chapter Two Keeping a Tight Rein: Government Direction during the Boards' Operations	26
Chapter Three Equality of Sacrifice: The Attitudes of the Board Members	43
Chapter Four Reality or Pragmatism?: The Attitudes of the Appellants	55
Chapter Five Assessment over Hostility: The Treatment of Conscientious Objectors	75
Chapter Six Firm but Fair: The Boards' Verdicts	90
Conclusions	104
Appendix Definition of Occupational Classifications Used	108
Bibliography	110

Abbreviations

AD	Army Department
AP	Sir James Allen Papers
AJHR	Appendices to the Journals of the House of Representatives
EP	Evening Post
FS	Feilding Star
MES	Manawatu Evening Standard
MP	Member of Parliament
NEB	National Efficiency Board
NZG	New Zealand Gazette
NZH	New Zealand Herald
NZS	New Zealand Statutes
NZT	New Zealand Times
NZPD	New Zealand Parliamentary Debates
PH	Pahiatua Herald
WDT	Wairarapa Daily Times
WC	Wanganui Chronicle

Boundaries of North Island Provincial Districts in 1921

Source: 1921 Census. The boundaries of the Provincial Districts were the same in 1921 as they were during the Military Service Boards' operations

Charts

	Page No.
1. Likelihood of a Farmer Receiving a Positive ‘Concrete Verdict’ from the Different Wellington Boards	40
2. Total and Final Status of Appellants	58
3. Rate of Appealing by Ballot	59
4. Occupational Classification of Wellington District Appellants	62
5. Representation of Occupational Classifications Amongst Wellington District Appellants	62
6. Percentage of Wellington District Appeals in which the Grounds were Cited	64
7. Percentage of Wellington District Appeals from each Occupational Classification that were Lodged by Employers	69
8. Percentage of Wellington District Appeals from each Occupational Classification that were only for Time	71
9. The Wellington Boards’ Verdicts in Appeals Lodged by Conscientious Objectors	84
10. Likelihood of a Farmer Receiving a Positive ‘Concrete Verdict’ from the Wellington Boards by Comparison with all Sample Appellants	91
11. ‘Concrete Verdicts’ Delivered by the Wellington Boards	98
12. Changes in the ‘Concrete Verdicts’ Delivered by the Wellington Boards	99
13. ‘Concrete Verdicts’ Delivered by the Wellington Boards Compared to those Delivered by All Boards	101

Acknowledgements

This thesis is not the work of an individual; a great deal of emotional, intellectual and administrative assistance went into its completion. Much of the former has come from my fiancée, Kat, who always kept me smiling and reminded me that work is far from the only thing in life. Thank you to my parents for their support and confidence building, and to my brother for helping to advance my knowledge of statistics beyond the rudimentary.

I would again like to express profound gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. James Watson, both for his immense guidance and for always encouraging me to take my work one step further.

Massey University has been extremely generous with its financial support, which played a vital role in giving me the time to undertake such detailed research.

Finally, I would like to acknowledge the assistance rendered by the staff at the Massey University Library, particularly Anne Hall and Jane Leighton in the Documents Supply Service.

My thesis is dedicated to the memory of the members of the Military Service Boards, and to the men and women who appeared before them. Whatever their beliefs or actions, each of them was forced to make difficult decisions in the midst of an unimaginable catastrophe. I only hope I have portrayed them all fairly.

David Littlewood
2010