

Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.

Images and Identity:
The Demonstration of New Zealand's National Identity through the Propaganda of the Second World War

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements of the Master of Arts in History

Jessica Anne McLean

2016

Massey University
Palmerston North
New Zealand

Acknowledgements

Such an involved project does not happen without significant support, obviously from academic sources but also from friends and family. I'm lucky to have a number of people to thank for their help while I was researching and writing this thesis.

First and foremost, Rachael Bell, my supervisor, who has been endlessly helpful and supportive and has pushed me to produce my best work. She has always been full of advice and ideas (as well as much-needed constructive criticism) and I feel very privileged to have worked with her. Michael Belgrave also gave considerable guidance and advice when this thesis was in the planning stages for which I am very grateful.

In terms of friends and family, I need to acknowledge Trish, who drove me to and from the train station at all hours; Shivarn, who always popped her head in to check on me; the Joseph St gang, who basically let me move into their house in the last few weeks; and of course my mum, who listened to my ideas and struggles, made sure I was working hard enough, and proofread all 40,000 words.

Finally Toby, who spent countless hours encouraging, comforting and listening to me – without his love and support this thesis would never have been finished.

Contents

Introduction

1

Chapter One

Context and Comparison: A Historiographical and Narrative Background

9

Chapter Two

Landscapes and Lemon-squeezers: The Distinctive New Zealand Material

26

Chapter Three

Empire and Edits: British Material in New Zealand

48

Chapter Four

Alterations and Australians: The Dominion Connection

60

Chapter Five

Compliments and Complaints: Propaganda and the New Zealand Public

71

Chapter Six

Images and Identity: Linking Propaganda and National Identity

87

Conclusion

99

Bibliography

101