ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to express my appreciation to the many people who have assisted me in the process of bringing this thesis to completion. First of all, thanks to my supervisor Dr Peter Lineham for his unfailing helpful advice and criticism, as well as his enthusiasm and liberality in lending resources. Also, for his very generous personal encouragement and hospitality. All these have made the year possible, and leave me both indebted and grateful. Thanks also to the members of the History Department at Massey for their encouragement, advice and the positive working environment that they create. Thanks for the encouragement and support of the thesis-writers group and classmates, most especially Isabella who bore the major burden for coping with my personality.

Thanks to the courteous and helpful staff at the Massey University Library, the Alexander Turnbull Library, the Methodist Church Archives, Knox College Archives, and St Johns College Library. Also to the numerous parishes around the region who generously allowed the use of their resources and facilities, and who often provided me with other extra goodies!

Finally, I would like to thank all those who have taken an interest in me, and supported me in various ways during the last year. My flatmate, Steve, has been particularly generous and tolerated my peculiarities with good humour. Special love and appreciation to my family, for each of their continual encouragement and support in every way. Soli Deo Gloria.
