

Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.

A qualitative study of the ethical practice of newly graduated nurses working in mental health

A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Philosophy in Nursing at Massey University

Katheryn Janine Butters
2008

ABSTRACT

Despite nurses having legitimate ethical rights and responsibilities, they are often constrained in practice from acting in ways they believe to be morally correct. This thesis presents a qualitative exploration of factors that influenced eight newly graduated nurses as they endeavoured to practice ethical mental health nursing in New Zealand. Data was gathered from in depth interviews with the participants and analysed using a thematic analysis method. A critical lens was employed to view the data so as to make visible aspects of the social and political context within which the participants were situated.

The participants' moral practice was profoundly influenced by a number of relational experiences they had. These relationships were then determinants in their moral development, professional socialization and their ability to practice in accordance to their moral beliefs. Key aspects of these relationships were their experiences with nursing education and the influence of the organisations where they worked. Recommendations are made to both areas to enable and support moral nursing practice for new graduate mental health nurses.

New graduate nurses inherently desire to practice in a way that honours the client and is therefore inherently ethical. Moral nursing practice is an everyday occurrence that must be situated in a culture of respect and regard for both clients and nurses. New graduate nurses have much to offer the profession and the tangata whaiora of the mental health services. They must be valued and supported to act in accordance to their moral ideals.

Acknowledgements

Writing a thesis is like many of life's most difficult challenges. No one really tells you how hard and life altering it is until you are too far in to turn back. I would have never succeeded in this significant achievement without the support of the many wonderful people present in my life. For their wisdom, commitment, generosity, faith and tolerance I am exceedingly grateful.

To my husband Jeff, for being a most wonderful partner and father. Thank you for your unwavering belief in me to do whatever I set out to do. To my beautiful clever daughters, Isabella and Lilli, who make me proud every day and constantly inspire me to be the best I can be. I love you all the way to the moon and back.

To my supervisor Stacey Wilson, who is without doubt a shining star for mental health nursing in this country. My work has benefited profoundly by your vision, understanding, investment, commitment and belief in the inherent worth and ability of mental health nurses. To my supervisor Dr Martin Woods, eminent nursing ethicist, wise philosopher, and inspiring teacher. It has been a privilege to work with you and I am thankful for your patience and guidance.

To the participants who generously gave your stories to me to tell. The future of mental health nursing is well entrusted to you. To my stunning, brilliant nursing friends who have worked this path with me, and are always there when I need them. I would be lost and lonely without you.

Tēna koto tēna koto tēna koto katoa.

Table of Contents

CHAPTER ONE	1
1.0. Background to the study	1
1.0.1. Relevance to nursing	3
1.0.2. Relevance to health	4
1.0.3. Previous New Zealand research	6
1.1. Theoretical constructs of ethics	7
1.1.1. Bio-ethics.....	9
1.2. Nursing ethics	9
1.2.1. Moral issues for mental health nurses	12
1.2.2. The value of including nurses in ethical decision making.....	14
1.3. Research question and aims	16
1.3.1. A reference to terminology.....	16
1.4. Organisation of the thesis	17
1.5. Summary	19
CHAPTER TWO	20
2.0. Introduction	20
2.1. Moral development and nursing ethics education	21
2.1.1. Moral agency, ethical decision making and moral values.	24
2.1.2. Nursing autonomy and oppression	25
2.1.3. Constraints on the ethical practice of nurses.....	27
2.1.4. Moral distress.....	30
2.2. The mental health arena	31
2.3. Ethical issues in mental health	35
2.4. Entering the system (mental health nursing)	41
2.4.1. Graduate mental health nurses.....	44
2.4.2. New graduate nurses and their ethical experiences	45
2.4.3. Summary.....	47

CHAPTER THREE	48
3.0 Introduction	48
3.0.1. Methodology	49
3.0.2. Epistemological assumptions	49
3.0.3. Theoretical perspectives: qualitative methodology	50
3.0.4. Qualitative interpretation in nursing research.....	52
3.0.5. Using a critical lens.....	53
3.0.6. Studying newly graduated nurses' ethical experiences.....	55
3.1. Thematic analysis method	56
3.1.1. Using thematic analysis in nursing research.....	57
3.2. Method and procedure	58
3.2.1. Sampling	58
3.2.2. The participants	59
3.3. Data collection	59
3.4. Data analysis	62
3.5. Ethical issues	64
3.6. Soundness of the research	68
3.7. Summary	71
CHAPTER FOUR	72
4.0. Introduction	72
4.1. Learning the rules	73
4.1.1. Being prepared.....	74
4.1.2. Being New	82
4.1.3. Learning in practice	88
4.1.4. Fitting in	92
4.1.5. Recognising conflict with others	96
4.2. Summary	99

CHAPTER FIVE.....	100
5.0. Introduction	100
5.1. Justice and care	101
5.1.1. Stigma and silence	102
5.1.2. In who's best interest?	106
5.1.3. Cure versus care.....	109
5.1.4. Finding Allies	114
5.2. Summary.....	122
 CHAPTER SIX	 123
6.0. Introduction	123
6.1. Socialisation during education and graduate clinical experiences.....	124
6.1.1. Socialisation and preparation of ethical practice	125
6.1.2. Socialisation and preparation of mental health nursing.....	129
6.2. Organisational influences.....	135
6.2.1. Ethical issues for new graduate mental health nurses	136
6.3. Mentoring and support of new graduates	140
6.4. Safe staffing and developing a sustainable workforce.....	142
6.5. Learning the skills to deal with conflict.....	144
6.6. Strengths and limitations of the study	148
6.7. Recommendations.....	150
6.7.1. Nursing education: undergraduate programmes	150
6.7.2. Nursing education: graduate mental health nursing.....	151
6.7.3. Mental Health Services employing new graduate nurses:	151
6.8. Recommendations for future research	152
6.9. Conclusion.....	153
 References.....	 154

Appendix I : Recruitment poster.....	177
Appendix II: Information sheet.....	178
Appendix III: Participants consent form.....	180
Appendix IV: Semi structured interview guide.....	181
Appendix V: Release of tape transcripts	182
Appendix VI: Ethics approval	183
Appendix VII: Transcriber confidentiality form.....	184

Table of Figures

Table 1: Characteristics of the participants.....	59
Table 2: Ethical issues discussed by the participants	106