

Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.

‘Such A Work As This’

A Case Study of The All Saints’ Children’s Home, Palmerston North

A thesis presented in fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of

Master of Arts

in

History

at Massey University, Manawatū,
New Zealand

Elizabeth Ward

2015

Acknowledgements

As with any large piece of research there have been many people who have helped and advised me.

I would like to thank Massey University who awarded me a Masterate Scholarship which enabled me to work full time on this project.

Lesley Courtney and the staff at the Ian Matheson City Archives, Palmerston North were unfailingly helpful. Most of the primary material in this thesis came from the archive and the staff were always patient with my requests, ready to talk and provide advice.

James Watson, supervisor of this thesis, provided excellent guidance, always listened to my ideas, and put up with my terrible grammar.

My husband Rob and children Hannah and Rebekah, who lived with the All Saints' Children's Home for a year. Without their support I would not have been able to complete this thesis. Special thank you to my mother, Mary-Helen, who proof-read my final draft and made many helpful suggestions.

Finally, in the course of my research I had the privilege to meet, or talk to, eleven people who spent part of their childhood in the All Saints' Children's Home. These people opened their homes to me, fed me, and most importantly shared a parts of their lives with me. This was not easy for them as it involved sharing often traumatic stories about their families and the Home. Yet without these ex-children being prepared to share their lives the story of the Home would have been one dimensional, that of those in authority. I am incredibly grateful that these ex-children took the time to tell me their stories and enabled me to write about the experiences of families and children.

The oral history component of this thesis had clearance from the Massey University Human Ethics Committee: Southern B, Application 14/14.

Contents

Acknowledgements	iii
Contents	v
List of Figures and Illustrations	vii
Abbreviations	ix
Introduction	1
1 The Opening of the Home	13
2 The Management of the Home	25
3 Employment of Staff for the Home	43
4 How the Home was supported	55
5 The Children and Families of the Home	73
6 Parental Agency	91
7 Life in the Home	103
8 The Relationship Between the Home and the Government	121
9 The closure of the Home	131
Conclusion	145
Bibliography	155
Appendix:
Oral History Documentation	167

List of Figures and Illustrations

1	The first All Saints' Children's Home	12
2	Length of Service	30
3	Occupations of Board Members	32
4	Ages of Board and Committee Members	33
5	Some of the staff of the Home	42
6	The second building the Trust owned	54
7	Main sources of income	56
8	Miss Foley and the Children, 1917	72
9	Numbers of Children	75
10	Gender of Children	79
11	Maori children one	82
12	Maori children two	83
13	Maori children three	84
14	Children's family circumstances	87
15	A parent with children at the Home	90
16	The children, staff and All Saints' clergy, August 1943	102
17	Children at Brown House in the mid-1950s	113
18	The children being transported on the back of truck at Brown House	114
19	The children and staff, November 1956	130
20	Numbers of children March 1962-July 1964.	140
21	The Family Home in Ngaio Street	144

Abbreviations

AJHR Appendices to the Journals of the House of Representatives.